Quote on Professional Services:

Developing professional services sector is one of the national agenda in facing global liberalisation challenges. Emerging technologies are coming into local market in a big way, making constructions and developments to be more complex for any one person to know everything. Through MPC Professional Services Productivity Nexus (PSPN), we are preparing Malaysian professionals to work on professional collaborative skills development to be competitive internationally and to remove foreign domination in local industry. In construction industry, professional services collaboration requires deliberate effort to build relationships among the collaborators and to break its organisational silos. This is where PSPN plays significant roles in facilitating collaborations among professionals and creating more Malaysian lead collaborators in the industry to lead other professionals in various joint skills development programmes and job implementations.
